Personality Descriptions

The Laid-back Type – F1/Pink

Let's admit it. Although it's a lot of fun to play with a dog, it can be exhausting too. There is no shame in wanting a more laid-back dog. This type is gentle, calm and friendly. They're very docile and adapt well to new environments. They love to play but can also lay around and sleep all day. This type is known to make a great family pet because they're patient and easygoing enough to form strong bonds with children.

The Independent Type – F2/Purple & M2/Red

The independent type is a common personality type, especially among male dogs. Their attention span may be short due to the anxious excitement of new environments, unfamiliar people and dogs, but once their owner has established their ability to protect and love, it is the ultimate capture of attention. This type usually loves to go explore by themselves and will seek attention on their own time. If you are looking for a dog with a personality type that will show you a good amount of affection and respect without being overly needy, then bringing the independent personality into your home is worth it.

The Intelligent Type – F3/Light Blue

The intelligent type are smarty-pants dogs that are eager to learn and perform a job. Typically, this personality type picks up on cues and behaviors quickly. They usually have high-energy and might love a lot of playtime to burn some of their energy. This type usually has a lot of confidence and will adapt to new environments well. They are relentless, curious and are always wanting to explore new skills and environments.

The Calm/Cuddly Type – F4/Lime Green

Everyone loves a good marshmallow, especially when it comes in dog-form. These dogs are super-malleable and easy to handle in most environments, though they may not be as social as the outgoing type. They are a total snuggle bug who prefers to be held or to sit near or on their owner. They love to seek affection from their owner and may or may not seek attention from unfamiliar people. They relax in most environments and make great office dogs. If you are looking for a more laid-back, calm and very affectionate type of personality, this will be the perfect fit.

The Playful Type – F5/Yellow, F6/Orange & M3/Blue

This type is the cherry on top of a happy home. Dogs have all sorts of wonderful elements to their personality, but the playful type is the most fun to be around. Their goofy nature can brighten anyone's day no matter how gloomy it may be. This type is fun-loving and filled with a playful energy that makes for a great family companion. This personality type is full of so much life. They're down for just about anything from playing with dogs and humans, swimming, hiking and running alongside you. Even though they love to play, they also can relax with the family. They enjoy snuggling up next to their owner and relaxing, as well.

The Outgoing Type – F6/Orange

When we picture the perfect dog, the outgoing type might be the dog you imagine. This personality type is easygoing and makes friends with everyone. They are well-socialized, confident and are good in all different kinds of environments. They will seek the attention of new people, will not easily be frightened by strangers and they love affection. They love their owners very much and will stick close to them. This personality type usually makes for a good therapy dog.

The Alpha Type – M1/Black

Sometimes the alpha gets a bad reputation for being the more aggressive type and that is not usually the case. Alpha personality types are natural leaders and pleasers. They are the most loyal to the ones they love and like the independent type, will protect them as well. They are quick to obey learned commands and respond well to positive reinforcement during training. They pick up quick on actions and disciplines and compared to some of the other types they can be more affectionate. If you want a loyal personality type, smart, shows respect and is affectionate this is the personality type you are looking for.

The Independent Type – M3/Blue

The independent type is a common personality type, especially among male dogs. Their attention span may be short due to the anxious excitement of new environments, unfamiliar people and dogs, but once their owner has established their ability to protect and love, it is the ultimate capture of attention. This type usually loves to go explore by themselves and will seek attention on their own time. If you are looking for a dog with a personality type that will show you a good amount of affection and respect without being overly needy, then bringing the independent personality into your home is worth it.
